Under the IRB approach, banks must categorise banking-book exposures into broad classes of assets with different underlying risk characteristics